SALVAGE TASK BEING SPEEDED

Defense Council Appoints McClain to Gather Metal And Paper in District

Dan McClain, manager of the Circleville office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, was named Wednesday by the Civilian Defense Council as salvage director for Pickaway county, and he immediately started to work to collect as much metal and paper as possible to aid in the war effort.

Plans are under way to collect metals of all type in the city and in all communities of the county in which a salvage campaign has not been inaugurated.

Citizens are asked to check up at once on any materials or any paper about their homes or places of business which can be gathered. Market prices will be paid for all metals and paper. Announcement will be made later concerning the methods of collection.

McClain will call a meeting at once of all scrap metal dealers to work out a method of handling the supplies obtained. Many persons in the Circleville area have already gathered and disposed of large supplies of salvage metal, and various scrap metal yards are working large forces overtime to handle the supply.

The action was taken by the Defense Council at the request of the federal government which needs all metal available for munitions.

REDS MENACE NAZI GARRISON AT TAGANROG

Twelve Districts Liberated; German Attempt to Regain Offensive Broken Up

RESERVES BEING SPEEDED

Hitler's Men Meet Crushing Defeats In All Districts, Moscow Discloses

LONDON, March 25—The Red army has liberated 12 districts and partly liberated 10 others in Smolensk province and is continuing to advance westward, the Communist party newspaper Pravda reported today, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow.

Although Taganrog still is in enemy hands, Pravda said, Soviet scouts are harassing the garrison every night.

MOSCOW, March 25 — Reinforced by at least 570,000 new reserves recruited from all parts of Nazi-dominated western Europe, battered German armies today continued their thus-far futile attempts to seize the offensive from Russian forces in heavy fighting all along the vast front, it was reported today.

In every sector, however, the new Nazi forces were being steadily annihilated by the Red army, which claimed to have killed 52,000 Germans in fighting over a two-week period, it was announced officially.

Hoping to maintain his present lines as bases for his much-discussed "spring offensive," Adolf Hitler sent the reserves along.

GERMAN PLANES WATCH BRITISH, FEAR INVASION

LONDON, March 25—Appearance of German planes over the coast of England for the last two nights was attributed by London papers today to an effort by the Nazis to determine whether Britain was preparing ports of embarkation for a possible invasion of the occupied continent.

Following another daring raid yesterday by R.A.F. squadrons against occupied northern France, German fliers during the night bombed the outskirts of a town on the English south coast. There was no damage and no casualties.

The British assault was aimed principally against a power station at Comines, north of Lille. Other objectives in northern France also were struck.

Bitter dog fights resulted from the R.A.F. attack and seven British fighter planes failed to return. Two German Messerschmitts were known to have been destroyed.

JAPANESE INTERNED FOR WAR'S DURATION MAY BE FORCED TO PAY TAXES

MISSOULA, Mont., March 25—They may not relish the idea entirely, but Japanese internees at the Fort Missoula federal camp faced the prospect today of contributing to the war effort against Japan and other axis nations.

ATHLETE KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Arthur Allen, 21, South High Graduate, Strangled By Door Of Car

A Columbus athlete was choked to death and two other persons, one of them from near South Bloomfield, were injured early Wednesday in a head-on collision six miles south of Columbus on the extension of Parsons avenue.

Dead was Arthur Raymond Allen, 21, 140 Hinman avenue, a former member of the South high school football, basketball and baseball teams.

Seriously injured were Elmer Blair, 38, of near South Bloomfield, and his companion, Grace Gentile, 22, of 22 Merritt street, Columbus.

Both Blair and his companion were taken to Mercy hospital where authorities report that he is in critical condition with a possible skull fracture and she is suffering from a pelvic fracture and severe cuts and bruises.

Sheriff's deputies from Franklin county said Allen was driving north on Parsons avenue, apparently at a high rate of speed shortly after midnight when his auto collided head-on with Blair's car. Allen was thrown partly from his car, the door jamming against his neck, strangling him before help could arrive, according to Deputies Joe Sigrist and T. D. Mitchell.

Both cars were demolished.

STRICT CURFEW CURBS ACTIVITY ON WEST COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25 — Thousands of enemy aliens and American-born Japanese in strategic western military zones today prepared to adjust their lives in conformance with army curfew regulations.

The wartime civil control administration pointed out that the orders, which become effective at 8 p. m. Friday will cancel all previous exemptions. This meant that all affected persons holding night jobs will be forced out of work unless adjustments can be made in their hours of employment.

Previous curfew regulations exempted such persons as night watchmen, porters and cooks. The new edict requires that all alien Germans and Italians and both foreign and American-born Japanese in the designated zones be in their homes between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m. and within five miles of their residences at all other hours, except while arranging for evacuation.

FBI activity, meantime, swung to the Pacific northwest where Seattle agents arrested six Japanese aliens including one woman.

M'ARTHUR WINS "AUTHORITY OF HIGHEST ORDER"

Australian Prime Minister Says Offensive Program In General's Hands

JAP UNDERTAKING SLOWED

Heavy Fighting Going On In Burma; Americans Hit Quickly In Thailand

By International News Service General Douglas MacArthur's carefully laid and secret plans for dislodgement of Japan from the southwestern Pacific and ultimate subjugation of the island empire here accepted without reservation by Australia today.

Prime Minister John Curtin announced to the Australian House of Representatives at Canberra that the general will be given "authority of the highest order" to carry a joint American and Australian offensive against the Japanese to successful conclusion.

Except for another Japanese bombing attack on Port Moresby and German reports that Nippon land troops have advanced 25 miles through the New Guinea mountains, allegedly encircling an Australian detachment, the tempo of war in the Australian theatre appeared to have slowed down, at least temporarily.

Heavy blows dealt out to the invaders by American and Australian fliers were credited with delaying the Japanese advance and there were mounting indications that the whole enemy pattern of conquest may already have been seriously altered by the United Nations' offensive movements which swelled into action when MacArthur crossed the Pacific by speedboat to assume supreme command.

Heavy Fighting In Burma

No immediate new developments were reported from Burma, but violent activity still was presumed under way on the Central Front south of Toungoo, where the Japanese attacked fiercely in the hope of turning the flanks of the Sino-British defenders and eventually divide the allies.

A check-up showed that in a series of daring surprise raids on Japanese-held airdromes at Chingmai and Lampun in Thailand, American volunteer group fliers attached to the Chinese air force accounted for at least 14 Japanese planes and inflicted undetermined casualties on personnel.

At the same time, there was a revival of Japanese air attacks on Chinese territory.

In the European theatre, the Italian high command claimed that one of its torpedo-carrying planes had scored an "almost certain" hit on a medium-sized British cruiser. It was recalled, however, that while Rome yesterday claimed to have sunk 17 vessels out of a British convoy, the London admiralty disclosed that all but one of the huge train of vessels had reached Malta safely. An Italian battleship, now believed to

TWO SATELLITES OF HITLER FIGHT

MOSCOW, March 25—Troops of Hungary and Romania have clashed near the frontier town of Sighisoara, a supplementary Russian communique reported today.

There were casualties on both sides, it was said.

Hungary and Romania, satellites of Nazi Germany, have been at odds with each other since Germany ceded part of Transylvania to Hungary after winning control of the Balkans.

BONUSES TO EMPLOYEES PROBED

A congressional probe into war profits of Jack and Heintz, Inc., of Bedford, O., aircraft engine parts manufacturers, has revealed payment of more than $1,000,000 to employees in "Christmas and income tax bonuses." W. S. Jack, company president, asserted the bonuses were paid to keep up the employees' morale though Edmund Toland, congressional committee counsel, contended the emoluments were distributed to avoid excess profit levies. Jack countered criticism of his business methods by offering to donate to the government rights on an airplane starter he manufactures. Jack is shown center above with Ralph Heintz, left, vice president in charge of engineering, and the president's son, W. R. (Russ) Jack, right.

Ohioan Cuts Out Bonus For Himself, But Retains Plan To Treat Workers

CLEVELAND, March 25—William S. Jack took a salary cut of $85,000 a year today and smiled. He promised to not pay himself any bonus or dividend for the duration of the war and outwardly appeared calm, although he drew $45,000 in bonuses last year.

He cut the $100,000 annual salaries of himself, his son, William Russell Jack, and his partner, Ralph Heintz, to $15,000 a year, barred them from taking bonuses — they also drew $45,000 each last year — and placed a voluntary six percent limitation on the profits of his airplane part plant for the duration.

The action followed an investigation by the House naval affairs committee which charged that Jack was making excess war profits and spending government money in bonuses to officers and employees.

But Jack is going to continue to pay his 1,500 employees, whom he calls "associates," a 15 percent annual bonus, provide them with free lunches at the plant, give them free tickets to sports events, dinner parties in a downtown hotel, and a $50 defense bond every month.

Why is he doing this? The diminutive president of the Jack and Heintz company, which was started a year ago with $5,000 and now is a $20,000,000 concern, said on his return from the committee hearing in Washington that he finds his system produces five times as much work by building the morale of his workers.

Not only did Jack slash his profit percentage, cut bonuses and reduce salaries of the three officers, but he says he will turn over "every dime" above six percent profit to the Army and Navy, less what it costs to service his equipment. He said an excess profits fund of $750,000 accumulated since the company's fiscal year ended last October, will either be turned over to the government or be used to service equipment.

NATION'S CAPITAL OWNS LOUDEST AIR RAID SIREN

WASHINGTON, March 25—The nation's capital tested the world's "loudest" air raid siren today and virtually all downtown Washington held its ears throughout the 30 minutes that the test lasted.

The siren, a huge motor-driven affair mounted on a one-ton truck which circled atop the roof of one of the tallest buildings in the downtown area, is designed to blanket the entire District of Columbia with one warning signal.

Some idea of its efficiency could be obtained from newsmen in the nearby International News Service bureau who were forced to suspend all telephonic communication because conversations were utterly impossible, so piercing was the siren's wail.

WAKE, MARCUS AREAS LASHED BY AIRPLANES

MUCH DAMAGE REPORTED

Navy Takes Prisoners In One Assault; Nipponese Fortifying Regions

WASHINGTON, March 25—Carrying the war to within 990 miles of the Japanese mainland, the U. S. Pacific fleet has executed two daring raids on the Jap held bases at Wake and Marcus islands, the latter a tiny island which the enemy was fortifying. Announcement was made by the Navy in a communique which stated that both surface craft and airplanes participated in the attacks—and with the loss of only two planes.

Emphasizing the fact that little opposition was met and that attacking forces found few enemy planes and ships in that area, the

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., March 25—Almost total destruction of strong and important Japanese fortifications on Wake island and equal damage to a nearly-completed air base on Marcus island, approximately 1,000 miles from Tokyo, were described today by spokesmen for United States fleet forces that participated in the raids. The attack on Wake island revealed definitely that Japan was strengthening that important atoll for possible offensive moves against Hawaii.

Navy said, nevertheless, that 219 bombs plus shells were rained on Wake island and 96 bombs on Marcus.

On Wake island, which United States Marines defended gallantly from December 7 until its capture December 23, two enemy patrol boats were sunk, and three large seaplanes demolished. One U. S. aircraft was lost in the raid.

Since capture of Wake, the Navy said that "the enemy has worked feverishly to strengthen the defenses against attack."

The Marcus island attack was executed just before dawn on March 4, the Navy said. Flares were dropped to illuminate objectives but no enemy aircraft or ships were present.

40-HOUR WEEK SCRAP WILL BE CAMPAIGN ISSUE

WASHINGTON, March 25 — Sen. Frederick Van Nuys (D) Ind., today warned Democratic colleagues that the fight to suspend the 40-hour week law and other labor issues may be projected into the coming congressional elections.

"If this wholesale protest that seemingly exists in the general public continues, it is bound to have a material effect in the coming election," Van Nuys declared.

The drive for suspension of the 40-hour week law admittedly has been halted, temporarily at least, but advocates of the change switched to a "compromise" proposal to lift the work week to 48 hours without overtime pay, and provide time and a half over 48 hours.

President Roosevelt, however, gave notice that he opposes a 48-hour limit as well as any change in the 40-hour law. He urged that the present system of paying time and a half for over 40 hours work be continued.

The President's statement came after Speaker Rayburn, in an opposite view, disclosed that he favors changing the law so that time and a half pay will be given only after 48 hours of work.

Double time pay for Sunday and holiday work, however, appeared definitely on the way out. Both CIO and AFL officials were in agreement on this issue.

A congressional probe into war profits of Jack and Heintz, Inc., of Bedford, O., aircraft engine parts manufacturers, has revealed payment of more than $1,000,000 to employees in "Christmas and income tax bonuses." W. S. Jack, company president, asserted the bonuses were paid to keep up the employees' morale though Edmund Toland, congressional committee counsel, contended the emoluments were distributed to avoid excess profit levies. Jack countered criticism of his business methods by offering to donate to the government rights on an airplane starter he manufactures. Jack is shown center above with Ralph Heintz, left, vice president in charge of engineering, and the president's son, W. R. (Russ) Jack, right.

Ohioan Cuts Out Bonus For Himself, But Retains Plan To Treat Workers

CLEVELAND, March 25—William S. Jack took a salary cut of $85,000 a year today and smiled. He promised to not pay himself any bonus or dividend for the duration of the war and outwardly appeared calm, although he drew $45,000 in bonuses last year.

He cut the $100,000 annual salaries of himself, his son, William Russell Jack, and his partner, Ralph Heintz, to $15,000 a year, barred them from taking bonuses—they also drew $45,000 each last year—and placed a voluntary six percent limitation on the profits of his airplane part plant for the duration.

The action followed an investigation by the House naval affairs committee which charged that Jack was making excess war profits and spending government money in bonuses to officers and employees.

But Jack is going to continue to pay his 1,500 employees, whom he calls "associates," a 15 percent annual bonus, provide them with free lunches at the plant, give them free tickets to sports events, dinner parties in a downtown hotel, and a $50 defense bond every month.

Why is he doing this? The diminutive president of the Jack and Heintz company, which was started a year ago with $5,000 and now is a $20,000,000 concern, said on his return from the committee hearing in Washington that he finds his system produces five times as much work by building the morale of his workers.

Not only did Jack slash his profit percentage, cut bonuses and reduce salaries of the three officers, but he says he will turn over "every dime" above six percent profit to the Army and Navy, less what it costs to service his equipment. He said an excess profits fund of $750,000 accumulated since the concern's fiscal year ended last October, will either be turned over to the government or be used to service equipment.

NATION'S CAPITAL OWNS LOUDEST AIR RAID SIREN

WASHINGTON, March 25—The nation's capital tested the world's "loudest" air raid siren today and virtually all downtown Washington held its ears throughout the 30 minutes that the test lasted.

The siren, a huge motor-driven affair mounted on a one-ton truck which circled atop the roof of one of the tallest buildings in the downtown area, is designed to blanket the entire District of Columbia with one warning signal.

Some idea of its efficiency could be obtained from newsmen in the nearby International News Service bureau who were forced to suspend all telephonic communication because conversations were utterly impossible, so piercing was the siren's wail.

Navy Takes Prisoners In One Assault; Nipponese Fortifying Regions

WASHINGTON, March 25—Carrying the war to within 990 miles of the Japanese mainland, the U. S. Pacific fleet has executed two daring raids on the Jap held bases at Wake and Marcus islands, the latter a tiny island which the enemy was fortifying.

Announcement was made by the Navy in a communique which stated that both surface craft and airplanes participated in the attacks—and with the loss of only two planes.

Emphasizing the fact that little opposition was met and that attacking forces found few enemy planes and ships in that area, the

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., March 25—Almost total destruction of strong and important Japanese fortifications on Wake island and equal damage to a nearly-completed air base on Marcus island, approximately 1,000 miles from Tokyo, were described today by spokesmen for United States fleet forces that participated in the raids.

The attack on Wake island revealed definitely that Japan was strengthening that important atoll for possible offensive moves against Hawaii.

Navy said, nevertheless, that 219 bombs plus shells were rained on Wake island and 96 bombs on Marcus.

On Wake island, which United States Marines defended gallantly from December 7 until its capture December 23, two enemy patrol boats were sunk, and three large seaplanes demolished. One U. S. aircraft was lost in the raid.

Since capture of Wake, the Navy said that "the enemy has worked feverishly to strengthen the defenses against attack."

The Marcus island attack was executed just before dawn on March 4, the Navy said. Flares were dropped to illuminate objectives but no enemy aircraft or ships were present.

40-HOUR WEEK SCRAP WILL BE CAMPAIGN ISSUE

WASHINGTON, March 25—Sen. Frederick Van Nuys (D) Ind., today warned Democratic colleagues that the fight to suspend the 40-hour week law and other labor issues may be projected into the coming congressional elections.

"If this wholesale protest that seemingly exists in the general public continues, it is bound to have a material effect in the coming election," Van Nuys declared.

The drive for suspension of the 40-hour week law admittedly has been halted, temporarily at least, but advocates of the change switched to a "compromise" proposal to lift the work week to 48 hours without overtime pay, and provide time and a half over 48 hours.

President Roosevelt, however, gave notice that he opposes a 48-hour limit as well as any change in the 40-hour law. He urged that the present system of paying time and a half for over 40 hours work be continued.

The President's statement came after Speaker Rayburn, in an opposite view, disclosed that he favors changing the law so that time and a half pay will be given only after 48 hours of work.

Double time pay for Sunday and holiday work, however, appeared definitely on the way out. Both CIO and AFL officials were in agreement on this issue.

The mid-day Red army communiqué said merely that "there were no material changes throughout the night."

A supplementary bulletin said fierce fighting was raging in the suburbs of "the great locality of 'S' on the southern front, where the Soviet troops were clearing the area in house by house combat with the Germans.

(Editor's Note: The locality "S" possibly may refer to the important city of Stalino deep in the Donetz basin.)

A special communiqué claimed that more than 16,000 Nazis had been killed in two weeks of fighting in the Leningrad sector alone. During the period between March 9 and 22, the Red army captured large amounts of German matériel, including 424 machine guns, 90 mortars and 68 field guns, the communiqué said.

On the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, an attempted enemy counter-offensive was crushed by the Red army after several days of violent fighting, according to another communiqué, which also claimed the sinking of a Nazi submarine in the Barents sea off northern Russia and the destruction of 31 German planes, as compared with 15 Soviet craft, in Sunday's fighting.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said that the 16th German army, trapped in the Staraya Russa sector, had lost 32,000 men in the last ten days and added that the entire 290th Nazi division had been assaulted so fiercely, after being landed by air transports inside the Russian pincers, that "scarcely more than its number remains."

Another Tass report said Red guerrillas had wiped out 4,257 Germans, destroyed 340 Nazi trucks, 33 tanks and armored cars, 29 planes and had derailed 16 railway cars "in a short period" of activity in the Orel region some 200 miles south of Moscow.

Heaviest fighting continued on the Staraya Russa, Kalinin, Vyazma-Rzhev, Orel-Kursk, Kharkov and Crimean fronts.

Big Transports Downed

Russian fighter planes were said to be taking a heavy toll of the big German transport planes which have been attempting to land reinforcements, especially in the Staraya Russa sector. Ten of the transports were shot down in a single day, according to Red Star, the Russian army newspaper.

OHIO'S TEACHER TENURE ACTION IS HELD LEGAL

COLUMBUS, March 25—Validity of the Teacher Tenure act passed by the 1941 legislature was upheld by the state supreme court today in four separate cases in which boards of education were ordered to grant contracts to teachers who had been denied them.

The rulings will clarify the status of hundreds of teachers throughout Ohio whose contracts terminated after the act was signed on June 2, 1941, by Governor Bricker but before it became effective 90 days later as provided by law.

The court held that language of the act making it applicable to teachers under contract "at the time of passage" meant that it applied to those under contract when the governor affixed his signature, and not on the date the act became effective September 1.

Rescue—After 11 Days at Sea

A sea saga ends for the crew of a small United Nations vessel after it was sent to the bottom by an enemy submarine. Two small lifeboats left the stricken ship and eleven days of privation followed. Finally, a friendly cargo vessel approached and picked up the survivors. These photographs were made, somewhere at sea, from the rescue ship.

RECAPPED TIRES MADE AVAILABLE TO OHIO DRIVERS

COLUMBUS, March 25—Recapped tires may be issued after April 1 only to those motorists who "fit the classifications established by law," State Rationing Administrator H. T. Beckmann warned Ohio's 850 local rationing boards today. He advised the boards not to go "hog wild" in granting recapped tires under new provisions announced by the Office of Price Administration. All applications must be investigated thoroughly, he asserted.

Beckmann pointed out that the new recap provisions will not enable every man and woman employed at a war production plant to obtain tires. Traveling salesmen, he warned, must be agents for products essential to the public welfare in order to qualify for recapped tires.

Licensed taxis, or similar transportation to the general public, he pointed out, may be granted recapped tires. Rented cars, however, have been placed on the ineligible list. For the first time since the tire rationing system was instituted, Ohio war workers and others on the Class B list will be permitted to purchase recapped tires during April, the OPA asserted in its announcement.

CHIEF OF TOUGH AVIATION CORPS DIES IN ACTION

NEW YORK, March 25—In suburban Scarsdale they remember Jack Newkirk as a skinny kid intent on developing muscles and a fearsome scowl to offset his slight build.

Today, "Scarsdale Jack" was reported dead at 28—killed as his "Flying Tigers" squadron of American pilots fighting for the Chinese strafed a Jap-held airport in Thailand.

He never quite made the grade on muscles and he grinned too often to make the practiced scowl effective, but the Japs knew he was tough even if Scarsdale never was impressed.

They knew it after 26 air duels in which "Scarsdale Jack" roared back to his base the winner.

Young Newkirk was graduated from Scarsdale high school with a bent for monkeying around with guns and planes but he went on to Columbia university to take up chemistry. After a time he transferred to Rensselaer Polytechnic institute in Troy, N. Y., where he began to prepare for naval aviation.

Graduating eventually from Pensacola naval training station, he enrolled with the American volunteers bound for Burma and soon became a squadron commander.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Although the Navy communiqué did not mention it, some Japanese prisoners were taken by U. S. forces during the raid on Wake island. Dispatches filed from Pearl Harbor said that a number of Japanese seen clinging to wreckage of a patrol boat were picked up by a U. S. Navy craft. The number of prisoners was not reported.)

The raids were conducted by a single task force under the command of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, who previously directed the smashing blows against the Japanese Marshall and Gilbert islands January 31. The Wake island raid was staged on February 24.

In the raid on the Marshall and Gilbert islands a total of 16 Japanese warships and auxiliary vessels were destroyed in addition to 41 airplanes. The latest raids were the third and fourth announced engagements in which the American Pacific fleet has taken part since Pearl Harbor.

The second, announced March 3, involved an American aircraft carrier, cruisers and destroyers in the Gilbert island group. In this operation the American fleet was attacked by 18 heavy Japanese bombers all of which were reported destroyed.

The operation at Wake island marked the first time that large American forces have visited that area since the Japanese captured the mid-Pacific outpost following its heroic defense by less than 400 fighting Marines.

Prior to Wake's capture by the Japanese, the Marines held off the invaders for 14 days with equipment consisting of 12 fighter planes, six five-inch guns, 12 three-inch anti-aircraft guns and 18 50-caliber anti-aircraft weapons.

On the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, an attempted enemy counter-offensive was crushed by the Red army after several days of violent fighting, according to another communique, which also claimed the sinking of a Nazi submarine in the Barents sea off northern Russia and the destruction of 31 German planes, as compared with 15 Soviet craft, in Sunday's fighting.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said that the 16th German army, trapped in the Staraya Russa sector, had lost 32,000 men in the last ten days and added that the entire 290th Nazi division had been assaulted so fiercely, after being landed by air transports inside the Russian pincers, that "scarcely more than its number remains."

Another Tass report said Red guerrillas had wiped out 4,257 Germans, destroyed 340 Nazi trucks, 33 tanks and armored cars, 29 planes and had derailed 16 railway cars "in a short period" of activity in the Red region some 200 miles south of Moscow.

Heaviest fighting continued on the Staraya Russa, Kalinin, Vязma-Rzhev, Orel-Kursk, Kharkov and Crimean fronts.

Big Transports Downed

Russian fighter planes were said to be taking a heavy toll of the big German transport planes which have been attempting to land reinforcements, especially in the Staraya Russa sector. Ten of the transports were shot down in a single day, according to Red Star, the Russian army newspaper.

At least 570,000 new reserves recruited from all parts of Nazi-dominated Europe was said to have been hurled into combat, but official announcements from Moscow said that the Soviets were holding and even advancing.

Another dispatch that sounded an ominous note for the future of Hitler's shaky new order came from the Russian capital. OHIO'S TEACHER TENURE ACTION IS HELD LEGAL

COLUMBUS, March 25—Validity of the Teacher Tenure act passed by the 1941 legislature was upheld by the state supreme court today in four separate cases in which boards of education were ordered to grant contracts to teachers who had been denied them.

The rulings will clarify the status of hundreds of teachers throughout Ohio whose contracts terminated after the act was signed on June 2, 1941, by Governor Bricker but before it became effective 90 days later as provided by law.

The court held that language of the act making it applicable to teachers under contract "at the time of passage" meant that it applied to those under contract when the governor affixed his signature, and not on the date the act became effective September 1.

RECAPPED TIRES MADE AVAILABLE TO OHIO DRIVERS

COLUMBUS, March 25—Recapped tires may be issued after April 1 only to those motorists who "fit the classifications established by law," State Rationing Administrator H. T. Beckmann warned Ohio's 850 local rationing boards today. He advised the boards not to go "hog wild" in granting recapped tires under new provisions announced by the Office of Price Administration. All applications must be investigated thoroughly, he asserted.

Beckmann pointed out that the new recap provisions will not enable every man and woman employed at a war production plant to obtain tires. Traveling salesmen, he warned, must be agents for products essential to the public welfare in order to qualify for recapped tires.

Licensed taxis, or similar transportation to the general public, he pointed out, may be granted recapped tires. Rented cars, however, have been placed on the ineligible list.

For the first time since the tire rationing system was instituted, Ohio war workers and others on the Class B list will be permitted to purchase recapped tires during April, the OPA asserted in its announcement.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Although the Navy communique did not mention it, some Japanese prisoners were taken by U. S. forces during the raid on Wake island. Dispatches filed from Pearl Harbor said that a number of Japanese seen clinging to wreckage of a patrol boat were picked up by a U. S. Navy craft. The number of prisoners was not reported.)

The raids were conducted by a single task force under the command of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, who previously directed the smashing blows against the Japanese Marshall and Gilbert islands January 31. The Wake island raid was staged on February 24.

In the raid on the Marshall and Gilbert islands a total of 16 Japanese warships and auxiliary vessels were destroyed in addition to 41 airplanes. The latest raids were the third and fourth announced engagements in which the American Pacific fleet has taken part since Pearl Harbor.

The second, announced March 3, involved an American aircraft carrier, cruisers and destroyers in the Gilbert island group. In this operation the American fleet was attacked by 18 heavy Japanese bombers all of which were reported destroyed.

The operation at Wake island marked the first time that large American forces have visited that area since the Japanese captured the mid-Pacific outpost following its heroic defense by less than 400 fighting Marines.

Prior to Wake's capture by the Japanese, the Marines held off the invaders for 14 days with equipment consisting of 12 fighter planes, six five-inch guns, 12 three-inch anti-aircraft guns and 18 50-caliber anti-aircraft weapons.

Draft Chief Hershey Says Registration Of Women Can Be Expected

LAW TO BE PUT IN USE

Men May Be Told To Work Or Take Places In Armed Forces

COLUMBUS, March 25—America faces a war situation that will ultimately call for registration of women workers and place millions of persons in places and jobs different from any they have experienced before.

This was the message left today by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, in a talk before the sixth annual conference of Ohio Trade Association secretaries.

The nation's war pattern now gradually taking form, indicates future use of draft law powers to force both men and women into armaments and other essential jobs, Hershey said.

Then he continued: "I don't know and no one else knows whether we will need a fighting army of 4,000,000 or 8,000,000 men, but we do need an industrial army of about 15,000,000 working units (men and women) by next January.

"All of us are going to have to work and we are going to have to work harder and longer than in the past."

He said he did not believe that a direct conscription or draft of labor would be necessary, but explained:

"If a man is not employed in an essential industry he may be given the alternative of getting into one or being drafted."

"If he is idle and does not want to leave Columbus for a job in Pittsburgh, it can be pointed out to him that it is only 300 miles to Pittsburgh but 9,000 miles to Yokohama."

General Hershey also said that it would be an easy matter to use priorities and rationing regulations to close down non-essential industries and force the labor into shipbuilding and other necessary lines.

CANADIANS PUT BAN ON FRILLS IN NEW CLOTHES

OTTAWA, March 25—"Frills and furbelows" were ordered removed from women's clothes today by the Canadian government.

An official announcement by the war-time prices and trade board, effective May 1, prohibits manufacture of "dance sets," "lounging pajamas" and "teddy chemises."

The new regulations also affect the length and sweep of coats and skirts, the width of hems and limit the number of buttons.

"Voluminous sleeves" and the use of any material for numerous items such as a bodice attached to the top of a skirt or any type of matching underslip for a day-time dress are prohibited.

Men's suits will have only one pair of pants and no double-breasted coats or vests. The number of pockets will be reduced and cuffs on sleeves of sport jackets and on trouser legs will be eliminated.

The order regarding men's clothes is effective immediately.

WAR BOARD OF COUNTY ACTIVE

High School Boys Will Be Asked To Work On Pickaway Farms

To meet with an acute farm labor shortage in Pickaway county, plans were made at a County War Board meeting Tuesday afternoon to contact all the schools of the county in an effort to recruit high school boys for farm work this summer.

A committee including Mrs. Fannie Brooks, farmer field woman, and vocational agriculture instructors, Kenneth Holtrey, Walnut township; G. D. Bradley, Pickaway township, and Leroy B. Hassenpflug, Perry township, was appointed by War Board Chairman John G. Boggs to make the school survey.

The War Board took steps to list men with combines and special harvesting equipment so that farmers may know where to go to get help when harvest time arrives. H. J. Merz of the local employment office offered his services in assisting with such a survey.

In a report to the War Board Merz said that the demand for labor in Pickaway county this summer will be much greater than the supply available. About 25 percent of the labor survey cards have been returned, he said, and of that percentage, most of the farmers indicated they would need extra labor during the harvest season.

Merz declared that there was an acute shortage of skilled farm labor for milking, feeding of livestock, operating seeding machinery and other special equipment.

Discussion during the meeting revealed that many farm laborers were being hired away from farmers by other farm operators, this practice causing considerable worry among men with peas, potatoes, beans and other vegetable crops. Numerous examples were cited where farmers are reducing their acreage of vegetable and canning crops due to the lack of labor to handle the crop.

WASHINGTON, March 25—Pat Di Cicco, of "chicken pot fame," was in Washington today to join the Navy.

"Right after Pearl Harbor I tried to enlist in the air corps, but they turned me down because I was working in a vital industry—making planes with Howard Hughes," Pat said.

Circleville Men Learn Civilian Defense Tasks

Nine Circleville men were told Tuesday of methods in which they might meet war emergencies when they attended defense classes at Ohio university, Athens.

Among the topics discussed during the meeting, which ran continuously from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., were blackouts, fire defense, incendiary bomb control, bomb shelters and removal of bombs, sabotage and espionage, gas defense, decontamination and treatment of war injuries.

The local men were told that experiences in England showed that housing large groups of persons was not practical and that to obtain adequate protection from direct bomb hits, a bomb shelter must be at least 80 feet under the ground. Many bombing injuries are caused by flying shell fragments, the men were told.

During the session laboratory demonstrations of gas and incendiary bomb control were given and motion pictures showing the effect of incendiary bombs were presented. William S. Bucklew, assistant state fire marshal, was in charge of the demonstrations.

Men May Be Told To Work Or Take Places In Armed Forces

COLUMBUS, March 25—America faces a war situation that will ultimately call for registration of women workers and place millions of persons in places and jobs different from any they have experienced before.

This was the message left today by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, in a talk before the sixth annual conference of Ohio Trade Association secretaries.

The nation's war pattern now gradually taking form, indicates future use of draft law powers to force both men and women into armaments and other essential jobs, Hershey said.

Then he continued: "I don't know and no one else knows whether we will need a fighting army of 4,000,000 or 8,000,000 men, but we do need an industrial army of about 15,000,000 working units (men and women) by next January.

"All of us are going to have to work and we are going to have to work harder and longer than in the past."

He said he did not believe that a direct conscription or draft of labor would be necessary, but explained:

"If a man is not employed in an essential industry he may be given the alternative of getting into one or being drafted."

"If he is idle and does not want to leave Columbus for a job in Pittsburgh, it can be pointed out to him that it is only 300 miles to Pittsburgh but 9,000 miles to Yokohama."

General Hershey also said that it would be an easy matter to use priorities and rationing regulations to close down non-essential industries and force the labor into shipbuilding and other necessary lines.

CANADIANS PUT BAN ON FRILLS IN NEW CLOTHES

OTTAWA, March 25—"Frills and furbelows" were ordered removed from women's clothes today by the Canadian government.

An official announcement by the war-time prices and trade board, effective May 1, prohibits manufacture of "dance sets," "lounging pajamas" and "teddy chemises."

The new regulations also affect the length and sweep of coats and skirts, the width of hems and limit the number of buttons.

"Voluminous sleeves" and the use of any material for numerous items such as a bodice attached to the top of a skirt or any type of matching underslip for a day-time dress are prohibited.

Men's suits will have only one pair of pants and no double-breasted coats or vests. The number of pockets will be reduced and cuffs on sleeves of sport jackets and on trouser legs will be eliminated.

The order regarding men's clothes is effective immediately.

LAMNECK SCORES VORYS, ENTERS CONGRESS RACE

COLUMBUS, March 25—Arthur P. Lamneck, Franklin county's congressman from 1931 to 1939, announced his candidacy for congress on a platform endorsing President Roosevelt and full support of the war effort. He struck at the district's present representative, John M. Vorys, Republican, with the statement that "he has voted time and again to prevent the United States from properly preparing to defend itself."

After several days of hard work, Henry Gloyd and his two sons, Francis and Edgar, completed the construction of a 18-foot sewer drop (manhole) on the north side of East Main street. Two important things are scheduled for this Friday evening. At 4 o'clock Mr. Mahaffey and his live force of helpers, will make the rounds of the village homes upon their junk collecting trip and ask that everyone who possibly can, contribute all they can, in this junk line. Up to this time these collections have been quite successful, all doing their part in making it so. Later in the evening, at near 7 o'clock a banquet will be served at the Mrs. Pontius restaurant to the members of The Ashville Community Club and 50 individuals, we are guessing, will be there and at it. The membership goal is set at one hundred so we say, and this number can and will be obtained, judging by the new members already secured by the solicitors, G. H. Brintlinger and C. A. Higley.

WASHINGTON, March 25—Pat Di Cicco, of "chicken pot fame," was in Washington today to join the Navy.

WAR BOARD OF COUNTY ACTIVE

High School Boys Will Be Asked To Work On Pickaway Farms

To meet with an acute farm labor shortage in Pickaway county, plans were made at a County War Board meeting Tuesday afternoon to contact all the schools of the county in an effort to recruit high school boys for farm work this summer.

A committee including Mrs. Fannie Brooks, farmer field woman, and vocational agriculture instructors, Kenneth Holtrey, Walnut township; G. D. Bradley, Pickaway township, and Leroy B. Hassenpflug, Perry township, was appointed by War Board Chairman John G. Boggs to make the school survey.

The War Board took steps to list men with combines and special harvesting equipment so that farmers may know where to go to get help when harvest time arrives. H. J. Merz of the local employment office offered his services in assisting with such a survey.

In a report to the War Board Merz said that the demand for labor in Pickaway county this summer will be much greater than the supply available. About 25 percent of the labor survey cards have been returned, he said, and of that percentage, most of the farmers indicated they would need extra labor during the harvest season.

Merz declared that there was an acute shortage of skilled farm labor for milking, feeding of livestock, operating seeding machinery and other special equipment.

Discussion during the meeting revealed that many farm laborers were being hired away from farmers by other farm operators, this practice causing considerable worry among men with peas, potatoes, beans and other vegetable crops. Numerous examples were cited where farmers are reducing their acreage of vegetable and canning crops due to the lack of labor to handle the crop.

Circleville Men Learn Civilian Defense Tasks

Nine Circleville men were told Tuesday of methods in which they might meet war emergencies when they attended defense classes at Ohio university, Athens.

Among the topics discussed during the meeting, which ran continuously from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., were blackouts, fire defense, incendiary bomb control, bomb shelters and removal of bombs, sabotage and espionage, gas defense, decontamination and treatment of war injuries.

The local men were told that experiences in England showed that housing large groups of persons was not practical and that to obtain adequate protection from direct bomb hits, a bomb shelter must be at least 80 feet under the ground. Many bombing injuries are caused by flying shell fragments, the men were told.

During the session laboratory demonstrations of gas and incendiary bomb control were given and motion pictures showing the effect of incendiary bombs were presented. William S. Bucklew, assistant state fire marshal, was in charge of the demonstrations.

BORING FROM WITHIN
WE DON'T want any "ideological witch hunts" here, such as have burst some foreign countries wide open and brought injustice to thousands of harmless people. But when Uncle Sam has got a few other big chores done, and our war effort operating more effectively, it will be necessary to take up more seriously the question of alien meddling in America.

Indeed, some critics seem to doubt whether our war operations really can be effective now until there is a cleaning up of hostile and subversive influence. The term "subversive" has been used so much in normal times, on trivial matters, that it has lost its punch, but now we are facing the real thing.

Our foreign enemies are naturally using every possible influence they can bring to bear in this country to interfere with our war preparations and our thinking. Hitler and his gang try to flood the land with spies and propaganda, and far too many people, under thinly veiled pretenses of loyal Americanism, are doing his deadly work for him.

In some ways this situation is worse than it was in the last war, because the Nazis are more ingenious and shameless propagandists than their predecessors were. The Japanese naturally are less able to get at American minds than the Nazis and Fascists are, but the disloyal among them can do much harm by giving military information to the yellow barbarians. The FBI is doing a good job, but there is doubtless much more to be done.

ADAM'S PEAK
CEYLON, very much in the news just now, and Adam, one of the best-known names in human history, at first sight do not seem to have much in common. Yet every traveller to Ceylon has his attention called to a lofty mountain known as Adam's Peak, on whose top is said to be the actual footprint of the father of the human race. What other country can boast such a relic?

True, the Buddhists say that it is not Adam's print at all, but was made by the founder of their religion, Gautama Buddha. And skeptical visitors from the United States say that it does not look like anybody's footprint at all. If it suggests anything, it is that some one sat down there; and even then it must have been some one of sizable dimensions, for it is five feet across.

But let us not quarrel with the inhabitants of Ceylon. For years they have been making money out of the sightseers who come to gaze on this giant impression, and

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MEN COSTLY
WASHINGTON — One big criticism of Donald Nelson's new War Production Board is that he has blanketed into his new set-up all the barnacles from the old, including battalions of $1-a-year men. This includes many top-notchers, but also many who seem to be representing the companies at home which still pay them lush salaries.

Here, for instance, is one concrete illustration of how the system works.

At Vinita, Okla., the Government recently took over the Grand River Power project previously operated by the State of Oklahoma. The Government did this under special war powers, which give it the right to take over such plants; also because Governor "Red" Phillips was having labor troubles.

Having taken over the project, it would seem natural that the Government should supply its own power to its own army cantonment at Cookson Hills, thus saving itself some money. However, it now turns out that the Government rejected its own low bid of under 5 mills to supply electricity to Cookson Hills, and accepted the high bid of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company, a subsidiary of a big holding company, at 10.8 mills.

Thus the Government by refusing to buy power from itself, will lose for itself—and for the taxpayer — around 5 to 6 mills per kilowatt hour.

ARMY VS. FEDERAL WORKS

Now let us see how this strange decision was arrived at.

First, investigation reveals that two branches of the Government were not cooperating. When Judge Davidson, counsel for the Federal Works Administration in Oklahoma, went to see Col. H. A. Montgomery, district Army engineer at Tulsa, Montgomery refused to show him the power contract for Cookson Hills cantonment. Furthermore, the Army had hired Carl Gerhardt, who had been previously asked to resign by Federal Works because of the contracts he negotiated with utilities.

The excuse officially given for accepting the higher bid of Oklahoma Gas and Electric was that the Grand River project would have to construct eleven miles of line, and copper was scarce. However, Oklahoma Gas and Electric now has stated that it also will have to put up eleven miles of wire.

But the crowning irony of the deal is that the Grand River project interchanges power with Oklahoma Gas and Electric when one or the other is short of power. So during "peak" loads, the private company will be buying power from the government at a contract rate of 4 mills, and then selling the same power back to another branch of the Government for 10.8 mills.

Spinal Column Subject To Variety of Injuries

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SPINAL column was defined in the aged anecdote about Johnny in school as "a thing to hold your head on at one end and to sit down on at the other." This Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

was a perfectly scientific piece of observation, its only fault being that it left out a good deal. Between the two functions that Johnny described, the thing can get into a good deal of trouble.

There are twenty-five or more separate bones in the spinal column—seven neck vertebrae, twelve chest vertebrae, five lumbar vertebrae, the sacrum and the little bones of the coccyx. Between each of these is a joint which can be the location of arthritis.

Attached to, and holding all these bones together are muscles and tendons which can become inflamed, causing muscular rheumatism, lumbago and other forms of inflammatory disability. The entire column is subject to injury of many kinds. I described a few weeks ago, my own experience with a sudden sacro-splenic strain, which means a strain of the ligaments between the sacrum and the pelvic bone.

Between each vertebra there is a kind of cushion of cartilage and softer material. One of the forms of injury which has recently been described and is obtaining attention is an injury where some of this soft tissue between the vertebrae is forced out of place—so-called dislocation of the nucleus pulposus. At the Mayo Clinic it has been found that in most cases of sciatica that resist the ordinary forms of treatment, the trouble is a herniated nucleus pulposus. This can be fixed by surgery, and relief afforded in these stubborn cases.

Many Treatments
With all these possibilities it can be seen that the treatment of backache is not a simple matter. It may be all right to try home remedies, such as heat and the hot water pad on a backache for a few days or a week, but after that I would advise consultation with a doctor who has had considerable experience in this line. He will take a careful history, make a physical examination, have an X-ray of the spine and be able to prescribe intelligent treatment on the basis of these facts.

Orphan in Diamonds
LORENA CARLETON

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
"NO ONE would suspect the fashionable August Drake and the Laurence Peytons of living in quiet apartments on Riverside Drive. We'll get the cool breezes from the Hudson. Katie can do the cooking. We'll sleep about in old clothes and perhaps we can get this darn play settled." August's fiery curls quivered as she shook her head with enthusiasm. "Yes, it's a good idea. We can learn our own lines and decide whom we want with us, without being hounded, especially by Lois Lyndon."

Larry defended mildly. "Aw, she's only a harmless kid. Half in-sheathed society bud and half wild Indian. That comes from having lived with her eccentric old father in mountain cabins and on western ranches and fishing boats. The slip of a girl has killed three bucks in her life, and landed some whopping deep-sea fish." He said again, "But, she's harmless."

August Drake's words burned the air like sparks from a forge. "She's about as harmless as cocaine." Annoyed by the scoffing expression on her leading man's handsome face, she said, "Just because she's hooked some whopping fish she needn't try to hook you—or do you want her to come between you and Annette?"

"Don't ask idiotic questions, August!" Angry now, Larry began buttoning his collar and tightening the necktie that had been pushed away from his throat while he ate. "I'm going to get out of here for a while. Of course I don't want anyone coming between us." Suddenly he put out strong arms and pulled his wife nearer, chair and all. "And no one will come between us."

"I hope not. But that crazy, unprincipled kid has a persistence that beats Chinese torture methods."

The young, dark-haired girl felt her head buzzing over the unpredictable movements of August Drake. Still, any scheme that hid them from the snooping Lyndon heiress pleased her. "But she will ask me where you are," Annette fretted. "She'll even follow me home from the theater."

"A few times. That's why you'll have to stay here with a while. Bring her home a double whiskey. Pet her and her cat. Ask her to spend the night. Make her tell her you don't know where Larry is, that he isn't even writing to you. After a while she'll decide to leave town for the rest of the hot weather. She'll decide New York summers are pretty terrible after all."

Lois's behavior conformed closely to August Drake's prediction, although she left New York to comb thoroughly Atlantic City and a few nearby Connecticut towns. It took less than a week of connivance after her return, on the part of Annette and August really had sneaked into it.

And while the blonde girl was bitter with disappointment and a helpless rage, she found a certain amount of perverse happiness in the fact that Annette was a jilted and pathetic wife. Annette also was enjoying a perverse happiness. It amused her to lie in the twin bed, across from her impetuous, but putting guest and count exactly the number of blocks north and the number of blocks west that separated the railing girl from the object of her adoration.

About noon, after her second uneventful all-night stay with Annette, Lois announced to her brother, "I'm leaving New York."

He solved her sudden decision expertly. "So Peyton has left town?"

"Yes. He has gone. Why should I lie? So now there is nothing to keep me hanging around this disgusting, sweltering hole." Viciously, she jabbed out her cigarette.

"The man put down his book to ask, 'Where are you going?'"

"I don't know. I don't care. Anywhere." And then her blue eyes softened from their grating harshness. "Yes, I do, too. I think I'll take the station wagon and drive through Canada. I'd like to go to Banff and Lake Louise again." Her voice grew huskily pleased. "I'll hire a couple, a man to make camp and a woman who knows how to make real old-fashioned flapjacks and boiled coffee. I'll sleep outside and fish—I'll live just the way Daddy and I used to do." Swift plans came to an end as she gave her brother a critical glance. "You don't look so well, sonny. Better come along."

"No, thanks. That's for huskies like you." He looked at his sister's slight figure and smiled. That is, his eyes crinkled and his glistening teeth showed as his mouth widened, but it didn't seem a smile. "I'm no good at that sort of life." He got up and followed his sister when she moved into her bedroom.

"I've seen you do mighty well with a fishing rod, my lad." Working quickly, now that she had made up her mind, she gathered stacks of warm clothes together—sweater, flannel skirts, velvet corduroy skirts, jodhpurs, boots—and began distributing them into two bags.

Young Lyndon sat down on the girl's satin-trimmed bed and remarked admiringly, "I've never seen anyone like you, Lois. You're as natural in a woolen shirt and riding breeches as you are in a chiffon evening gown."

As an answer to his rare compliment she gave him a playful push against one temple. "Sure you wouldn't like to go along?" she said again.

"Very sure." He reached over and latched one of the cases.

The girl jeered. "And I know why you're so sure. Because you can't bear to leave town and not see Annette Winslow make her entrance in that haunted room in the palace. That play is like a flame when she runs in through that long painted glass window, wearing that fiery red taffeta dress—like a flame in an achingly cold room. But she wasn't like a flame last night, Jimmy. She was absolutely without life." Her voice became tense with the dreadfulness of it. "She doesn't even know where Larry is. Think of it. I could have felt sorry for her, if I hadn't felt so sorry for myself."

Her hands faltered in the task of folding a tweed jacket and she gave her brother a look full of meaning. "And now, I'm feeling sorry for you—oh, Jimmy!"

Immediately rigid, he got up and started to leave the room. The girl grabbed his arm. "Let's not go through that again," he commanded.

"But, Jimmy," she said again, "it is so ridiculous, the way you're behaving. It's just the same as when we were children. There was always some frightful nurse or governess or someone to say, 'Don't touch!' if we admired something. You were older, but so timid. You remember, I always touched what they told me not to. I did it deliberately. And one of the best times I ever had in my life was when Daddy took me into a china shop in Victoria and let me break a dozen plates. He paid for them and we left the place howling with laughter. That's the way I intend to live. But you, Jimmy, are still that little boy, easily disciplined. What's the matter with you anyway, Jimmy? You are a handsome man. You're tall and healthy and well-built and you have enough money to cover the girl with diamonds. Anyone belongs to anyone who can take them!" she finished with a vicious intensity.

"Oh, Lois!" the man shuddered. "Don't talk that way." Loathing drew his features into unfriendly lines. "You are like someone I don't even know." For a moment longer he looked at her. "I hope you are leaving very, very soon." He went out of the room.

The girl listened to her brother's heavy steps as he walked through the living room and slammed the door of the library. Her nail-enamelled, white hands, poised before her in the air, lost their grip on it, up, folded it and stuck it into the second traveling case.

James Lyndon did not emerge from the library until early evening. Summer twilight shadows darkened the living room and added to his feeling of loneliness. He pulled a ball cord and told the man who answered to bring him a drink, then walked toward his sister's room.

She had gone, leaving behind her the confusion of half-emptied dresser drawers, wadded tissue paper, stray articles of clothing—and a note. It was propped against the lamp base on her bedside table. Just like a play, thought Lyndon, with an unhappy smile. He opened it and read the very short message.

Jimmy darling, the girl had written, even though I'm wrong, I'm right.

With unsteady fingers he tore the sheet of paper, with its interwoven, thick silver initials, into tiny pieces. But the message remained with him while he drank white wine and seltzer, and throughout the entire performance of "The Violent Flame." At the end of the third act, after Annette had taken her two allotted bows, with Lance Ericsson and Jane Hubert, James Lyndon walked up the aisle.

Outside the theater, he headed for the stage entrance.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, Bataan's and Corregidor's defender in the Philippines and now commander of the United Nations' land, sea and air forces in the Pacific war area, of course is recognized as one of history's most brilliant soldiers. However, the utility of his actual fighting leadership wasn't the only reason for his assignment to his present posty "somewhere" in Australia.

He's all-around personality is spoken of in Washington as a tremendous asset in the stimulation of boundless enthusiasm and confidence in the rank and file of his officers and men. He's got dash; a theatrical quality. It wouldn't be sufficient if he hadn't martial ability, too, but he has.

He's defensively super-competent, but an offensive campaign in what he was made to order for. A first-rate chance for his genius to assert itself was lacking while he remained pretty effectively marooned, with the Japs outnumbering him ten to one, on southern Luzon, though even there he took a frequent telling jab into the enemy's front. Loose in the open, it's accepted as a foregone conclusion that his raiding will begin scoring against the Axis before hostilities are many days older.

Outnumbered, yet—
He's outnumbered yet. Still, a larger proportion of Australia's military strength is said to be enrolled in training than is the case in any other area on earth.

Parentetically "shan" is a Chinese word meaning a "mountain chain."

We hear of Shantung and Shansi provinces—in northern China. "Tung" means east. "Si" means west. Accordingly Shantung is east of a certain "shan," or mountain range and Shansi is west of it. And Burma's "shan states" (the "S" in "shan" isn't entitled to be capitalized) are its mountain states.

BORING FROM WITHIN

WE DON'T want any "ideological witch hunts" here, such as have burst some foreign countries wide open and brought injustice to thousands of harmless people. But when Uncle Sam has got a few other big chores done, and our war effort operating more effectively, it will be necessary to take up more seriously the question of alien meddling in America.

Indeed, some critics seem to doubt whether our war operations really can be effective now until there is a cleaning up of hostile and subversive influence. The term "subversive" has been used so much in normal times, on trivial matters, that it has lost its punch, but now we are facing the real thing.

Our foreign enemies are naturally using every possible influence they can bring to bear in this country to interfere with our war preparations and our thinking. Hitler and his gang try to flood the land with spies and propaganda, and far too many people, under thinly veiled pretenses of loyal Americanism, are doing his deadly work for him.

In some ways this situation is worse than it was in the last war, because the Nazis are more ingenious and shameless propagandists than their predecessors were. The Japanese naturally are less able to get at American minds than the Nazis and Fascists are, but the disloyal among them can do much harm by giving military information to the yellow barbarians. The FBI is doing a good job, but there is doubtless much more to be done.

ADAM'S PEAK

CEYLON, very much in the news just now, and Adam, one of the best-known names in human history, at first sight do not seem to have much in common. Yet every traveler to Ceylon has his attention called to a lofty mountain known as Adam's Peak, on whose top is said to be the actual footprint of the father of the human race. What other country can boast such a relic?

True, the Buddhists say that it is not Adam's print at all, but was made by the founder of their religion, Gautama Buddha. And skeptical visitors from the United States say that it does not look like anybody's footprint at all. If it suggests anything, it is that some one sat down there; and even then it must have been some one of sizable dimensions, for it is five feet across.

But let us not quarrel with the inhabitants of Ceylon. For years they have been making money out of the sightseers who come to gaze on this giant impression, and

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MEN COSTLY

WASHINGTON — One big criticism of Donald Nelson's new War Production Board is that he has blanketed into his new set-up all the barnacles from the old, including battalions of $1-a-year men. This includes many top-notchers, but also many who seem to be representing the companies at home which still pay them lush salaries.

Here, for instance, is one concrete illustration of how the system works. At Vinita, Okla., the Government recently took over the Grand River Power project previously operated by the State of Oklahoma. The Government did this under special war powers, which give it the right to take over such plants; also because Governor "Red" Phillips was having labor troubles.

Having taken over the project, it would seem natural that the Government should supply its own power to its own army cantonment at Cookson Hills, thus saving itself some money. However, it now turns out that the Government rejected its own low bid of under 5 mills to supply electricity to Cookson Hills, and accepted the high bid of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company, a subsidiary of a big holding company, at 10.8 mills.

Thus the Government by refusing to buy power from itself, will lose for itself—and for the taxpayer — around 5 to 6 mills per kilowatt hour.

ARMY VS. FEDERAL WORKS

Now let us see how this strange decision was arrived at.

First, investigation reveals that two branches of the Government were not cooperating. When Judge Davidson, counsel for the Federal Works Administration in Oklahoma, went to see Col. H. A. Montgomery, district Army engineer at Tulsa, Montgomery refused to show him the power contract for Cookson Hills cantonment. Furthermore, the Army had hired Carl Gerhardt, who had been previously asked to resign by Federal Works because of the contracts he negotiated with utilities.

The excuse officially given for accepting the higher bid of Oklahoma Gas and Electric was that the Grand River project would have to construct eleven miles of line, and copper was scarce. However, Oklahoma Gas and Electric now has stated that it also will have to put up eleven miles of wire.

But the crowning irony of the deal is that the Grand River project interchanges power with Oklahoma Gas and Electric when one or the other is short of power. So during "peak" loads, the private company will be buying power from the government at a contract rate of 4 mills, and then selling the same power back to another branch of the Government for 10.8 mills.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR

Bataan's and Corregidor's defender in the Philippines and now commander of the United Nations' land, sea and air forces in the Pacific war area.

His all-around "personality" is spoken of in Washington as a tremendous asset in the stimulation of boundless enthusiasm and confidence in the rank and file of his officers and men.

He's got dash; a theatrical quality. It wouldn't be sufficient if he hadn't martial ability, too, but he has.

He's defensively super-competent, but an offensive campaign is what he was made to order. A first-rate chance for his genius to assert itself was lacking while he remained pretty effectively marooned, with the Japs outnumbering him ten to one, on southern Luzon, though even there he took a frequent telling jab into the enemy's front. Later in the open, it's accepted as a foregone conclusion that his raiding will begin scoring against the Axis before hostilities are many days older.

Outnumbered, but—
He's outnumbered yet. Still, a larger proportion of Australia's military strength is said to be enrolled and in training than is the case in any other area on earth.

He'll have Dutch help also. From America it appears that he needs equipment more than man power, but he'll get some of that likewise.

And the anti-Jap Filipinos will continue to be useful, if he can keep them armed.

Finally, not only are the Australians, the Dutch and the Filipinos all rarin' to fight, but Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese are raising anti-Japanese heck, with no loss of time, in what dispatches describe as the edge of Burma's "Shan states."

Paraphrasing "shan" is a Chinese word meaning a "mountain chain."

We hear of Shantung and Shansi provinces in northern China. "Tung" means east, "Si" means west. Accordingly Shantung is east of a certain "shan," or mountain range and Shansi is west of it. And Burma's "shan states" (the "S" in "shan" isn't entitled to be capitalized) are its mountain states.

We might as well learn a little Chinese as a by-product of the war. Strategists generally agree that General MacArthur's problem would be immensely simplified for him if he had had the forethought to build a railroad across Canada, from our northern border to Alaska, before World War No. 2 began.

The Canadians were quite willing to grant us a right-of-way, but we postponed the job too long.

Had it been attended to at the time it originally was suggested, we could be air-raiding Japanese cities into heaps of ashes today, from the Aleutians. What it would do to the Japs' production of war supplies doesn't require much emphasizing.

By Water Is Slow
It's true, we still can get equipment to an Alaskan base by water or by plane, but it's slower work than it would be to run it up northward, in sufficient volume, by rail.

Meantime it's taken for granted that General MacArthur will overcome his handicaps, but it's obvious that he has them to overcome.

The Axis powers naturally are broadcasting their version that the general "abandoned" the Philippines because he realized that he was licked there. Their hope, it goes almost without saying, is to demoralize the democracies' morale, and particularly to impress the Latin Americans. Their story doesn't seem to be taking very well, though.

Japanese morale apparently isn't altogether fireproof either.

Jap generals have a habit of committing hari-kiri in fits of discouragement occasionally General Homma, in charge of the Mikado's troops in the Philippines, is reported to have done it the other day, from sheer disgust at General MacArthur's meanness to him, in refusing to give up. It may be a cue for General Yamashita to follow suit before long.

Spinal Column Subject To Variety of Injuries

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SPINAL column was defined in the aged anecdote about Johnny in school as "a thing to hold your head on at one end and to sit down on at the other." This was a perfectly scientific piece of observation, its only fault being that it left out a good deal. Between the two functions that Johnny described, the thing can get into a good deal of trouble.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There are twenty-five or more separate bones in the spinal column—seven neck vertebrae, twelve chest vertebrae, five lumbar vertebrae, the sacrum and the little bones of the coccyx. Between each of these is a joint which can be the location of arthritis.

Attached to, and holding all these bones together are muscles and tendons which can become inflamed, causing muscular rheumatism, lumbago and other forms of inflammatory disability. The entire column is subject to injury of many kinds. I described a few weeks ago, my own experience with a sudden sacro-lumbar strain, which means a strain of the ligaments between the sacrum and the pelvic bone.

Between each vertebra there is a kind of cushion of cartilage and softer material. One of the forms of injury which has recently been described and is obtaining attention is an injury where some of this soft tissue between the vertebrae is forced out of place—so-called dislocation of the nucleus pulposus. At the Mayo Clinic it has been found that in most cases of sciatica that resist the ordinary forms of treatment, the trouble is a herniated nucleus pulposus. This can be fixed by surgery, and relief afforded in these stubborn cases.

Many Treatments
With all these possibilities it can be seen that the treatment of backache is not a simple matter. It may be all right to try home remedies, such as heat and the hot water pad on a backache for a few days or a week, but after that I would advise consultation with a doctor who has had considerable experience in this line. He will take a careful history, make a physical examination, have an X-ray of the spine and be able to prescribe intelligent treatment on the basis of these facts.

Treatment of disease of the backbone may require in some cases rest, even to the extent of wearing a cast, and in other cases manipulation and massage and exercise. Heat, diathermy, climate, vaccinations and many other forms of treatment are at the modern surgeon's command, with which he is able to relieve most cases of these troubles.

The sufferer from backache, or backache injury or disease today is in a much more favorable condition to be relieved than his fellow sufferer of a generation ago when nearly everything was ascribed to "railroad spine."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
J. M. R.—"Why is it claimed that cold drinks are bad for stomach ulcer? Some say warm drinks should be used. Which is correct, and why do doctors differ on the question?"

Answer: Cold drinks aggravate the symptoms of stomach ulcer by causing the stomach to go into peristaltic waves which pass over the ulcer, causing distress. They do not make the ulcer worse, but simply start up the symptoms. I did not know that the doctors differed on the question.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. It was announced in New Lexington by B. B. Burns, resident engineer of the state highway department for Perry county, that the South Central Rural Electric cooperative of Pickaway, Perry and Fairfield counties, calling for expenditure of $722,292 in the three counties, had been approved by the rural electrification administration of Washington, D. C.

Police were notified that the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Bales, East Main street, had been ransacked while they were on a trip to Florida.

10 YEARS AGO
A daring early evening robbery was committed at the Dunlop Tire Co., West Main street, when two truck tires, both Dunlops, size 32x8, 10 ply, were stolen. Each of the tires was valued at $26.50.

Orphan in Diamonds

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

"NO ONE would suspect the fashionable August Drake and the Laurence Peytons of living in quiet apartments on Riverside Drive. We'll get the cool breezes from the Hudson. Katie can do the cooking. We'll sleep about in old clothes and perhaps we can get this darn play settled." August's fiery curls quivered as she shook her head with enthusiasm. "Yes, it's a good idea. We can learn our own lines and decide whom we want with us, without being hounded, especially by Lois Lyndon."

Larry defended mildly. "Aw, she's only a harmless kid. Half-saturnated society bud and half-wild Indian. That comes from having lived with her eccentric old father in mountain cabins and on western ranches and fishing boats. The slip of a girl has killed three bucks in her life, and landed some whopping deep-sea fish." He said again, "But, she's harmless."

August Drake's words burned the air like sparks from a forge. "She's about as harmless as cocaine." Annoyed by the scoffing expression on her leading man's handsome face, she said, "Just because she has hooked some whopping fish she needn't try to hook you—or do you want her to come between you and Annette?"

"Don't ask idiotic questions, August!" Angry now, Larry began buttoning his collar and tightening the necktie that had been pushed away from his throat while he ate. "I'm going to get out of here for a while. Of course I don't want any one coming between us." He idly put out strong arms and pulled his wife nearer, chair and all. "And no one will come between us."

"I hope not. But that crazy, unprincipled kid has a persistence that beats Chinese torture methods."

The young, dark-haired girl felt her head buzzing over the unpredictable movements of August Drake. Still, any scheme that hid them from the snooping Lyndon heiress pleased her. "But she will ask me where you are," Annette fretted. "She'll even follow me home from the theater."

August dismissed that worry. "A few times. That's why you'll have to stay here for a while. Bring her home with you, deliberately. Give her a double whiskey. Pet her and her cat. Ask her to spend the night. Make her completely happy—and miserable. Tell her you don't know where Larry is, that he isn't even writing to you. After a while, she'll decide to leave town for the rest of the hot weather. She'll decide New York summers are pretty terrible after all."

Lois's behavior conformed closely to August Drake's prediction, although she left New York to comb thoroughly Atlantic City and a few nearby Connecticut towns. It took less than a week of connivance after her return, on the part of Annette, to convince her that Larry and August really had sneaked in to hiding.

And while the blonde girl was bitter with disappointment and a helpless rage, she found a certain amount of perverse happiness in the fact that Annette was a jilted and pathetic wife. Annette also was enjoying a perverse happiness. It amused her to lie in the twin bed, across from her impetuous, but pouting guest and count exactly the number of blocks north and the number of blocks west that separated the railing girl from the object of her adoration.

About noon, after her second uneventful all-night stay with Annette, Lois announced to her brother, "I'm leaving New York."

"He solved her sudden decision expertly." So Peyton has left town?"

"Yes. He has gone. Why should I lie? So now there is nothing to keep me hanging around this disgusting, sweltering hole." Viciously, she jabbed out her cigarette.

"The man put down his book to ask, 'Where are you going?'"

"I don't know. I don't care. Anywhere." And then her blue eyes softened on their grating harshness.

"Yes, I do, too. I think I'll take the station wagon and drive through Canada. I'd like to go to Banff and Lake Louise again." Her voice grew huskily pleased. "I'll hire a couple, a man to make camp and a woman who knows how to make real old-fashioned flapjacks and boiled coffee. I'll sleep outside and fish—I'll live just the way Daddy and I used to do." Swift plans came to an end as she gave her brother a critical glance. "You don't look so well, sonny. Better come along."

"No, thanks. That's for huskies like you." He looked at his sister's slight figure and smiled. That is, his eyes crinkled and his glistering teeth showed as his mouth widened, but it didn't seem a smile. "I'm no good at that sort of life." He got up and followed his sister when she moved into her bedroom.

"I've seen you do mighty well with a fishing rod, my lad." Working quickly, now that she had made up her mind, she gathered stacks of warm clothes together—sweater, flannel shirts, velvet corduroy skirts, jodhpurs, boots—and began distributing them into two bags.

Young Lyndon sat down on the girl's satin-draped bed and remarked admiringly, "I've never seen anyone like you, Lois. You're as natural in a woolen shirt and riding breeches as you are in a chiffon evening gown."

As an answer to his rare compliment she gave him a playful push against one temple. "Sure you wouldn't like to go along?" she said again.

"Very sure." He reached over and latched one of the cases.

The girl jeered, "And I know why you're so sure. Because you can't bear to leave town and not see Annette Winslow make her entrance in that haunted room in the palace. The play is well named. Annette really is like a flame when she runs in through that long painted glass window, wearing that fiery rose taffeta dress—like a flame in an achingly cold room. But she wasn't like a flame last night, Jimmy. She was absolutely without life." Her voice became tense with the dreadfulness of it. "She doesn't even know where Larry is. Think of it. I could have felt sorry for her, if I hadn't felt so sorry for myself." Her hands faltered in the task of folding a tweed jacket and she gave her brother a look full of meaning. "And now, I'm feeling sorry for you—oh, Jimmy!"

Immediately rigid, he got up and started to leave the room. The girl grabbed his arm. "Let's not go through that again," he commanded.

"But, Jimmy," she said again, "it is so ridiculous, the way you're behaving. It's just the same as when we were children. There was always some frightful nurse or governess or someone to say, 'Don't touch!' if we admired something. You were older, but so timid. You remember, I always touched what they told me not to. I did it deliberately. And one of the best times I ever had in my life was when Daddy took me into a china shop in Victoria and let me break a dozen plates. He paid for them and we left the place howling with laughter. That's the way I intend to live. But you, Jimmy, are still that little boy, easily disciplined. What's the matter with you anyway, Jimmy? You are a handsome man. You're tall and healthy and well-built and you have enough money to cover the girl with diamonds. Anyone belongs to anyone who can take them!" she finished with a vicious intensity.

"Oh, Lois!" the man shuddered, "don't talk that way. Loathing drew his features into unfriendly lines. "You are like someone I don't even know." For a moment longer he looked at her. "I hope you are leaving very, very soon." He went out of the room.

The girl listened to her brother's heavy steps as he walked through the living room and slammed the door of the library. Her nail-enamelled, white hands, poised before her in the air, lost their grip on a bright red sweater. Without actually seeing it, she stooped to pick it up, folded it and stuck it into the second traveling case.

James Lyndon did not emerge from the library until early evening. Summer twilight shadows darkened the living room and added to his feeling of loneliness. He pulled a ball cord and told the man who answered to bring him a drink, then walked toward his sister's room.

She had gone, leaving behind her the confusion of half-empty dresser drawers, wadded tissue paper, stray articles of clothing—and a note. It was propped against the lamp base on her bedside table. Just like a play, thought Lyndon, with an unhappy smile. He opened it and read the very short message.

Jimmy darling, the girl had written, even though I'm wrong, I'm right.

With unsteady fingers he tore the sheet of paper, with its interwoven, thick silver initials, into tiny pieces. But the message remained with him while he drank white wine and seltzer, and throughout the entire performance of "The Violent Flame." At the end of the third act, after Annette had taken her two allotted bows, with Lance Ericsson and Jane Hubert, James Lyndon walked up the aisle.

Outside the theater, he headed for the stage entrance.

Today's Horoscope
Today a birthday child is a careful planner, precise in action and thought, and diligent effort should win him success. He or she is thrifty, in fact, at times a trifle overcautious. Frankness and loyalty gain many friends, and the married life is, or will be, happy. During the year mixed influences will prevail. If this person avoids excessive expenditure, quarrels, and extravagance and hasty temper checked.

On the final leg of a trip which has sent Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra vacationing in Florida, this famous radio band call on Sunday, March 29 at 10 p. m. at Camp Blanding, Florida, to entertain the officers and men training there.

During this winter vacation, Phil and the girls have played before over 20,000 soldiers and sailors in the various training camps situated along the eastern seaboard.

RADIO OPERA

Frank Black, the NBC general music director, has been given the honor of conducting a new radio opera, "The Nightingale and the Rose," which will have its world premiere April 25 at 2 to 3 p. m. The opera was written by George Lessner, Hungarian-born composer, and is based on Oscar Wilde's fantasy. Singers with Black will be Vivian della Chiesa and Margaret Daum, sopranos, and Earl Wrightson, baritone. Black now conducts three network programs regularly, "For America We Sing," "The American Melody Hour" and the Friday night concert series. For the opera he will have the full NBC Symphony Orchestra under his baton.

RADIO BRIEFS

"The Story of Bess Johnson," starring the famous radio actress with the same name, has acquired a new scriptwriter named Peggy Mayer. Miss Mayer, although extremely young and personable, is wise in the ways of radio, having written for "Wings of Destiny," "Hobby Lobby" and "Bulldog Drummond." Meanwhile, Addy Richten and Lynn Stone, who used to script "Hilltop House" before it became "The Story of Bess Johnson," have been signed to author "Woman of Courage," replacing Marie Baumer.

Erza Stone, radio's "Henry Aldrich," is still in there punching. Latest official reports place his Thursday night series fourth in popularity among all network shows.

Already possessor of the record for the most guest appearances during this season on the Andre Kostelanetz programs, James Melton, the tenor, is being set for still more appearances on that Sunday CBS series.

"Dr. Christian" and "Death Valley Days" are among those network programs which will remain on the air all summer.

Special program which resulted in airing over the four chains for the government when Fibber McGee and Molly missed their airing because of the death of McGee's

90-year-old father caused Frank Black to miss dinner. He was just ordering his meal when a page called him back to the studio to baton the broadcast.

ARMY GUESTS

On the final leg of a trip which has sent Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra vacationing in Florida, this famous radio band call on Sunday, March 29 at 10 p. m. at Camp Blanding, Florida, to entertain the officers and men training there.

During this winter vacation, Phil and the girls have played before over 20,000 soldiers and sailors in the various training camps situated along the eastern seaboard.

RADIO OPERA

Frank Black, the NBC general music director, has been given the honor of conducting a new radio opera, "The Nightingale and the Rose," which will have its world premiere April 25 at 2 to 3 p. m. The opera was written by George Lesser, Hungarian-born composer, and is based on Oscar Wilde's fantasy. Singers with Black will be Vivian della Chiesa and Margaret Daum, sopranos, and Earl Wrightson, baritone. Black now conducts three network programs regularly, "For America We Sing," "The American Melody Hour" and the Friday night concert series. For the opera he will have the full NBC Symphony Orchestra under his baton.

RADIO BRIEFS

"The Story of Bess Johnson," starring the famous radio actress with the same name, has acquired a new scriptwriter named Peggy Mayer. Miss Mayer, although extremely young and personable, is wise in the ways of radio, having written for "Wings of Destiny," "Hobby Lobby" and "Bulldog Drummond." Meanwhile, Addy Richton and Lynn Stone, who used to script "Hilltop House" before it became "The Story of Bess Johnson," have been signed to author "Woman of Courage," replacing Marie Baumer.

Ezra Stone, radio's "Henry Aldrich," is still in there punching. Latest official reports place his Thursday night series fourth in popularity among all network shows.

Already possessor of the record for the most guest appearances made this season on the Andre Kostelanetz programs, James Melton, the tenor, is being set for still more appearances on that Sunday CBS series.

"Dr. Christian" and "Death Valley Days" are among those network programs which will remain on the air all summer.

Special program which resulted in airing over the four chains for the government when Fibber McGee and Molly missed their airing because of the death of McGee's

90-year-old father caused Frank Black to miss dinner. He was just ordering his meal when a page called him back to the studio to baton the broadcast.

Current indications are the Charlie McCarthy programs will stay on for the summer with an entire substitute cast.

"CUT" OF A DIAMOND GOES DEEPER THAN STYLE
Brilliance is one of the most important standards by which the value of a diamond is established. And brilliance is controlled almost wholly by the accuracy and the type of cutting.
Cutting that is inaccurate, too deep or too shallow, allows light to escape needlessly. The "fire" of the stone is dimmed... its value per carat considerably decreased. Frequently as much as one-third of the carat weight is lost in recutting a diamond to modern standards of brilliance.
You can see the importance of cutting by inspecting the stones in our own collection. Stop in and let us explain how color, the degree of perfection and carat weight also combine to determine the real worth of any diamond.

"Famous For Diamonds"
Carat weight alone does not determine a diamond's value. Color, cutting, and the degree of perfection all influence the value greatly.

Army Irked By Amateur Athletic Union Ruling

BALTIMORE, Md., March 25 — A fight between the Amateur Athletic Union and the Army was on today over the AAU's suspension of a soldier athlete for playing with a service team against a professional basketball five.

Maj. Richard O'Connell, morale chief for the Third Corps area, said that the incident "smacks of axis efforts by a fifth column and amounts to persecution," while

Maj. A. K. Punnett, special services officer at nearby Aberdeen, disclosed that the soldier was directed to play in the game by a superior officer.

Mary Passaglia, a selectee from San Francisco and a former basketball star at Santa Clara university, was barred from a Baltimore amateur tourney because he participated in a game against the Cumberland, Md., Oilers, a pro team, in February. He and his team withdrew from the tournament.

Declaring that the action seems "grossly unfair" to the men in Aberdeen as well as soldiers throughout the country, Punnett said that "some change should be made quickly in the by-laws of the AAU to permit our country's soldiers to play against whomsoever they can secure games with."

"Eventually the majority of amateurs in this country will be in the Army and will be subject to such prejudicial rulings as we have in this case," he added.

ILLINOIS STARS ANNEX DOUBLES LEAD WITH 1,342

COLUMBUS, March 25—Paying a bowler's tribute to two Rock Island, Ill., arsenal workers who smashed to the top of the doubles pack with 1,342, participants in the American Bowling Congress tourney saw more high scores in prospect today.

Walker Selle, 31-year-old draftsman, and Joe Spinach, 28, a welder, both of Rock Island, rolled their way into the spotlight by pairing in the current marathon, and ending the match seven pins higher than their closest competitors.

Twenty-one California teams will bid for honors tonight, aided by a concerted movement to take the tournament to Los Angeles in 1944.

Heading the list is the Warner Bros. "Male Animal" quintet, captained by Max Stein, all-events champion of the 1937 classic at New York with the present record nine-game count of 2,070. On the same shift will be the "Diplomats", led by Harold Lloyd, movie comedian.

The war workers romped to the doubles victory after Selle's 289, high score of the Congress, came on 10 successive strikes following a first inning spare.

Carl Baumgartner and Hugh Stewart, both of Cincinnati, moved into fifth place in the doubles standings with 1,284. Other changes put Emil Nagelson, Cincinnati, into fourth place in the singles division with 706, while John Martine, Syracuse, went into sixth place in the singles with 692.

REDS WIN LONG FLORIDA JOUST FROM INDIAN 9

Half Of Runs Scored Go Across Plate Because Of Lost Fly Balls

LAKELAND, Fla., March 25 — Convinced that they are at least better — or less bad — than their Ohio rivals, the Cleveland Indians, the Cincinnati Reds were to tackle the Detroit Tigers today. It is the last of a four-game Grapefruit league series, which the Reds currently lead, two games to one.

A weird 12-inning tussle with the Indians yesterday ended with the Reds on the long end of a 9 to 6 score.

Although the generous scorekeepers recorded only two errors, about half of the 15 runs were scored on balls which outfielders lost in the sun.

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Squaring off today with the St. Louis Cards, Lou Boudreau's Fellerless Cleveland Indians had their first extra-inning tussle under their belts, a 9-6 loss to the Cincinnati Reds in 12 frames.

LAKELAND, Fla. — General Manager Jack Zeller today announced that Johnny Gorsica, Detroit hurler who was reported to have taken his salary protest to Commissioner Landis has accepted terms and is enroute to the Lakeland camp.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Pitcher Dutch Leonard, who joined the Washington Senators recently after a short holdout seige, today appeared to be shaping up to open the Nats regular season next month. Allowing only three hits in five innings when Washington was beating the St. Louis Browns yesterday 5-1, Leonard showed perfect control of his knuckle ball pitches.

PASADENA, Cal. — Luke Appling, the annual White Sox spring holdout, was on the scene today and his salary differences with Manager Jimmy Dykes were expected to be ironed out at almost any moment now. He arrived in time to witness the Sox' 12 to 3 rout of the hapless Athletics yesterday afternoon. The Sox pitcher exhibition, which may have been put on to impress Luke, included 15 hits of which three were homers by Murrell Jones, rookie first baseman; George Dickey and Lee Rose.

LOS ANGELES — The Chicago Cubs were back in their losing groove again today with a record of only one win in their last nine games. They were twice in the lead in yesterday's game with the Pirates behind the pitching of Claude Passeau, but when Paul Erickson took over the hurling in the sixth, three single enabled the Pirates to tie the score at 2-2. The seventh, Bob Elliott smacked a 360-foot homer into the right center field bleachers for the only other run of the game and a 3 to 2 victory for Pittsburgh.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The Giant regulars were to be back in the lineup today for a final game of the spring training grind with the Philadelphia Phils. The regulars were benched yesterday as the Giant second stringers patted John Lobert's boys 11 to 6, ending a six game losing streak.

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA. — Newell Kimball, apparently was assured today of a place right behind Wyatt and Higbe as a starting pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Kimball pitched five innings against the Boston Red Sox yesterday as the Dodgers won 4 to 3 and justified Manager Durocher's confidence in him.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Charlie Ruffing, smarted today under a six hit, five run first inning barrage dished out to him by the Detroit Tigers in his pitching debut of the season. Detroit won 8 to 1 and Ruffing's only consolation was that teammates Dickey, DiMaggio, Keller and Gordon went hitless.

Army Irked By Amateur Athletic Union Ruling

BALTIMORE, Md., March 25—A fight between the Amateur Athletic Union and the Army was on today over the AAU's suspension of a soldier athlete for playing with a service team against a professional basketball five.

Maj. Richard O'Connell, morale chief for the Third Corps area, said that the incident "smacks of axis efforts by a fifth column and amounts to persecution," while

Maj. A. K. Punnell, special services officer at nearby Aberdeen, disclosed that the soldier was directed to play in the game by a superior officer.

Mary Passaglia, a selectee from San Francisco and a former basketball star at Santa Clara university, was barred from a Baltimore amateur tourney because he participated in a game against the Cumberland, Md., Oilers, a pro team, in February. He and his team withdrew from the tournament.

Declaring that the action seems "grossly unfair" to the men in Aberdeen as well as soldiers throughout the country, Punnell said that "some change should be made quickly in the by-laws of the AAU to permit our country's soldiers to play against whomsoever they can secure games with."

"Eventually the majority of amateurs in this country will be in the Army and will be subject to such prejudicial rulings as we have in this case," he added.

18,000 TO MOVE TO GARDEN FOR BIG COURT GAME

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK, March 25—The meek who inherited the basketball world will clash for its collegiate championship before about 18,000 jammed in Madison Square garden tonight. Over the backs of highly touted favorites have clambered the men of Western Kentucky State and West Virginia universities and so rocky has been the pace of the national invitation tourney, not even the smartest of the so-called experts will venture to pick the winner.

West Virginia ruled a slight favorite with what was left of the book-making fraternity this afternoon. Probably because they knocked off Long Island university, seeded first, and Toledo university, seeded fourth in their first two rounds.

This is not making Western Kentucky mad, however, for this is one tourney in which the under dogs have come out on top. The Kentucks were seeded seventh and West Virginia, eighth and last, by the "experts" before the opening gun.

The Kentuckians were the mystery team of this tourney despite the fact that they won 26 of their 29 regular season games and annexed the Kentucky conference title for the tenth straight year. They whipped City College, seeded third 49-46 and Creighton, seeded fifth, 49-36 here Monday night.

Both teams are excellent set shooters, have amazed the blasé Manhattanites with their play-making and have shown they can hold on to that ball when they have it.

TITLE CONTEST MAY BE STAGED IN RELIEF SHOW

WASHINGTON, March 25—Details were being completed today for a gigantic boxing carnival to be held at Griffith stadium May 20 for the Naval Relief society.

A world's welterweight championship boxing bout between Freddie Cochrane, the title holder, and Ray "Sugar" Robinson, outstanding Negro contender, was endorsed as the show's feature by Mike Jacobs, who has been chosen to make matches associated with Naval relief throughout the country.

Arrangements for the huge boxing event were announced by George A. Garrett, campaign chairman of the Washington citizens' committee for the Relief society after he and members of his committee conferred yesterday with Uncle Mike.

REDS WIN LONG FLORIDA JOUST FROM INDIAN

Half Of Runs Scored Go Across Plate Because Of Lost Fly Balls

LAKELAND, Fla., March 25—Convinced that they are at least better — or less bad — than their Ohio rivals, the Cleveland Indians, the Cincinnati Reds were to tackle the Detroit Tigers today. It is the last of a four-game Grapefruit league series, which the Reds currently lead, two games to one.

A weird 12-inning tussle with the Indians yesterday ended with the Reds on the long end of a 9 to 6 score.

Although the generous scorekeepers recorded only two errors, about half of the 15 runs were scored on balls which outfielders lost in the sun.

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Squaring off today with the St. Louis Cards, Lou Boudreau's Fellerless Cleveland Indians had their first extra-inning tussle under the belts, a 9-6 loss to the Cincinnati Reds in 12 frames.

LAKELAND, Fla. — General Manager Jack Zeller today announced that Johnny Gorsica, Detroit hurler who was reported to have taken his salary protest to Commissioner Landis has accepted terms and is enroute to the Lakeland camp.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Pitcher Dutch Leonard, who joined the Washington Senators recently after a short holdout seige, today appeared to be shaping up to open the Nats regular season next month. Allowing only three hits in five innings when Washington was beating the St. Louis Browns yesterday 5-1, Leonard showed perfect control of his knuckleball pitches.

PASADENA, Cal.—Luke Appling, the annual White Sox spring holdout, was on the scene today and his salary differences with Manager Jimmy Dykes were expected to be ironed out at almost any moment now. He arrived in time to witness the Sox 12 to 3 route of the hapless Athletics yesterday afternoon. The Sox post-exhibition, which may have been put on to impress Luke, included 15 hits of which three were homers by Murrell Jones, rookie first baseman; George Dickey and Lee Ross.

LOS ANGELES — The Chicago Cubs were back in their losing groove again today with a record of only one win in their last nine games. They were twice in the lead in yesterday's game with the Pirates behind the pitching of Claude Passeau, but when Paul Erickson took over the hurling in the sixth, three single enabled the Pirates to tie the score at 2-2. In the seventh, Bob Elliott smacked a 360-foot homer into the right center field bleachers for the only other run of the game and a 3 to 2 victory for Pittsburgh.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — The Giant regulars were to be back in the lineup today for a final game of the spring training grind with the Philadelphia Phils. The regulars were benched yesterday as the Giant second stringers pasted John Lobert's boys 11 to 6, ending a six game losing streak.

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA. — Newell Kimball, apparently was assured today of a place right behind Wyatt and Higbe as a starting pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Kimball pitched five innings against the Boston Red Sox yesterday as the Dodgers won 4 to 3 and justified Manager Durocher's confidence in him.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Charlie Ruffing, smarted today under a six hit, five run first inning barrage dishes out to him by the Detroit Tigers in his pitching debut of the season. Detroit won 8 to 1 and Ruffing's only consolation was that teammates Dickey, DiMaggio, Keller and Gordon went hitless.

Junior Chamber of Commerce Organizes, Names Yost President,

SENIOR GROUP PUTS APPROVAL ON NEW UNIT

Hardware Dealer To Head Young Business Men's Organization

OTHER OFFICERS PICKED

Meetings To Be Staged Twice Monthly Under Constitution

Circleville was given a Junior Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night when 25 young business men of the city organized by electing officers and directors.

Organization of the Junior chamber was completed after Senior directors voted unanimously at the dinner meeting in Betz' restaurant to sanction the junior organization. The vote among the Senior directors was taken after each director had expressed his belief that a Junior chamber should be set up. Senior directors voting their approval were A. V. Osborn, president of the Senior chamber; R. L. Brehmer, Leslie May, C. Dee Early, F. K. Blair, W. Joe Burns, Mack Parrett, George Griffith and T. O. Gilliland.

James Yost, of the Harpster and Yost hardware was elected president of the Junior chamber. Yost was one of the early promoters of the plan for a Junior organization and was formerly a member of the Columbus unit. He also is a member of the Circleville Senior Chamber of Commerce.

Sheldon Mader of Mader's candy shop was made first vice-president and Richard Williamson of the Cliftona Theatre was chosen second vice-president. Robert Hemper of Stone's Grill will serve as secretary and Fred Grant, deputy clerk of courts, will be treasurer.

Directors Chosen

Twelve directors, six of whom shall serve for two years and six for one year, were elected by ballot preceding the election of officers. Directors who will serve for two years are James Yost, Richard Williamson, Dr. R. E. Hedges, Robert Hemper, Harold Clifton and Forrest Storrs.

Directors serving for one year are Joe Brink, Sheldon Mader, Fred Grant, Glen Skinner, Roger Vega and John Robinson.

Three officers from the Chillicothe Junior chamber, Robert Dresbach, president; Orville Garrett, vice-president; and John Stitt, secretary, were at Tuesday night's meeting and advised the local group on organization procedure.

Constitution Written

Sheldon Mader read the constitution and by-laws which were approved following discussion on each section. The rules provide that any business man in Circleville between 21 and 35 years old is eligible to join the organization.

The group voted to meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, the meeting to be held at 6:15 p. m. Next regular meeting for the organization was tentatively set for April 14. The directors will meet March 31 at 12 noon in Betz' restaurant to discuss the organization's future program.

Purpose of the Junior chamber is to function either by itself or in cooperation with other welfare groups in promoting various programs for the benefit of Circleville.

Final business was completed nearly three hours after the Senior chamber voted its approval on organizing the Junior group.

POEMS RECEIVE HONORS IN 'VISTAS' PUBLICATION

Poem of a Circleville woman, Mrs. W. W. Robinson, South Pickaway street, received top honors in the spring number of "Vistas", poetry publication of the Rev. L. C. Sherburne. Title of the poem is "This Land of Ours."

Among the Junior poems to receive awards were works of Betty Graham, sophomore at Scioto township school, and Martha Hulise, junior at Jackson township school.

He's the Prince

From a far distant land comes Prince Berendy (Dennis Allen) brought by reports of the beauty and wisdom of the lovely Princess Marya to seek her hand in marriage. Ignorant of the spell cast on the Princess, he arrives on her 16th birthday, bearing a miniature spinning wheel as a betrothal gift in "Sleeping Beauty," being shown Friday afternoon at the Cliftona theatre under auspices of the Child Conservation league.

Button Day Planned By Girl Clubs

High School Units Urging Cooperation To Assist Red Cross Work

Next Friday has been set up as "button day" in Circleville, and an effort is being made to collect a supply of old buttons which will be used by the Red Cross in making clothes for refugees in war-torn countries and for the families of soldiers.

Mrs. W. E. Caskey of the Red Cross has issued a call for buttons—any kind, any color, any size, or any shape.

Junior and Senior Girl Reserves of Circleville high school are sponsoring the campaign this week, and all children of the school system are being contacted for their cooperation.

The plea sent out by the Girl Reserves urges that all residents of the city assist in the undertaking, which is considered an important one. Such a program has been operated successfully in many cities.

"If you haven't a child," the Girl Reserve units point out, "get in contact with a youngster in your neighborhood and send your buttons to school with him."

HAROLD WILLIAMS, NEW HOLLAND NATIVE, DIES

The funeral will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in the New Holland Church of Christ.

Survivors include five other sisters and three brothers in addition to his widow.

COUNTY'S SALES TAX RECEIPTS STAY ABOVE '41

Report Of Week Ending On March 14 Discloses $13,584 Collected

MANY SHOW REDUCTION

All But One Other District In Central Ohio Behind Figure Year Ago

While many of Ohio's rural counties, including Ross, Fayette, Hocking, Madison and numerous others, have fallen behind their 1941 records in sale of prepaid sales tax receipts, Pickaway county continues to hold its own, and the state treasurer's office report of March 25 discloses that the county's total to date tops that of 1941.

The report was for the week ending March 14, at which time $13,584.04 has been collected, compared with $13,440.67 a year ago. Collection for the week of March 14 amounted to $1,524.69, compared with $1,245.49 a year ago.

The state total during the week of March 14 was somewhat behind last year's mark, receipts for the week being $968,530.23, compared with $1,086,850.69 in 1941.

Reports for 1942 and 1941 from other counties in Central Ohio follow:

SHIP ACTING IN QUEER MANNER HELD IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, March 25 — A French ship which Mexican coast guardmen reported had been "acting suspicious" has been seized off the Isla De Lobos, about 60 miles southeast of Tampico, a dispatch to the newspaper La Prensa said today.

The vessel, according to the Vera Cruz correspondent of La Prensa, was stopped by the Mexican coast guard boat G-2 under orders to investigate all suspicious craft.

The correspondent quoted Vera Cruz naval headquarters as authority for his information.

The coast guard vessel escorted the ship, flying the French tricolor to Isla De Lobos, in the Gulf of Mexico.

David Coello Ochoa, Vera Cruz naval commandante, was advised immediately of the seizure and left for Isla De Lobos to make an investigation.

homa. Now, get the picture back among the $1-men in Washington. Further investigation shows that despite Army-Federal Works friction in Oklahoma, local officials decided that the Government should supply power to the Government and had told the Grand River Authority to proceed. However, Donald Nelson's WPB makes the final decisions, and some one in it finally threw the contract to the private firm.

It so happens that the Power Branch of WPB is almost wholly staffed by big shot power company officials, including the following:

J. E. Moore, Electric Bond and Share, one of the most astute men in the utility business; E. W. Moorehouse, Associated Gas and Electric; E. Falck, Consolidated Edison; D. D. Chase, Detroit Edison; K. W. Miller, Commonwealth Edison; W. L. Cislser, Public Service of New Jersey; E. H. Yiedl, Potomac Electric; C. Bary, Philadelphia Electric; O. A. Horner, General Electric; H. I. Miller, Wisconsin Public Service; C. Wells, West Penn. Power; E. A. Hester, Duquesne Light and Power; C. W. Jones, New England Power Association; J. Smith, Kansas Light and Power.

Several years ago the utility companies maintained a powerful lobby in Washington which attracted wide attention. Headline news stories were written about their lavish entertainment and a house they rented where several Congressmen lived.

Today, however, the utilities don't have to spend money on high powered lobbyists. No longer do they require lavish entertainment for Congressmen. Their men now live at the Grace Dodge Hotel, a very modest hostelry once reserved exclusively for women, where they eat at the same table and discuss power problems every evening.

During the day they have desks in the War Production Board, where they draw annual salaries of $1 from the Government and substantial salaries or "drawing accounts" from their own companies.

These men are good, solid American citizens and the cooperation of their companies is absolutely essential. But naturally it is difficult, if not humanly impossible, to draw the line where their utility interests stop and government interests begin—as was shown in the Grand River, Okla., case. For it was someone among the $1-men in the Power Branch who ruled that the Government should pay about 5 mills more for power from a private firm, instead of buying direct from itself.

This problem of the $1-men is the biggest hurdle Donald Nelson faces.

TOO MUCH AND TOO EARLY

Two years ago, almost to the day, James H. R. Cromwell, then U. S. Minister to Canada, made a speech which created headlines in the papers and fury in Washington.

Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri declared it "an out-rageous and disgraceful breach of his office," and demanded that he be recalled from Canada. Congressman Martin Sweeney of Ohio said hotly, "We should have the courage to tell Cromwell and his lawfully wedded fortune, Doris Duke, to get the hell out of this Republic."

Secretary of State Hull declared that "The address contravened standing instructions to American diplomatic officers." And when press stories stated that Roosevelt had seen a copy of the speech in advance, the White House hotly denied it.

But what did Cromwell say, two years ago, which caused so much fury? The hottest passages in his speech were:

"To me, it is only too apparent that the life, the liberty, the livelihood and the very safety of this same neutral citizen (any U. S. citizen) may be dependent upon the outcome of the present war."

"I see approaching a force which frankly and openly seeks to destroy."

"Upon this interpretation of my duties as a diplomat I am content to risk my official head."

A short time thereafter, Jimmy Cromwell's official head was lost and he resigned as Minister to Canada. He had committed the offense of seeing what others could not see.

CHICAGO JUDGE HOARDS SUGAR: IN CANDY FORM

CHICAGO, March 25—Judge Joseph Sabath of the superior court frankly revealed today he was a sugar hoarder—sugar in the form of lollipops. He had laid up a year's supply, he said.

The purpose? To give to the children of couples who come before him chiefly seeking divorces. The veteran jurist was observing his 72nd birthday today and after his long service on the bench had only a pessimistic observation on the subject of divorce.

"Most divorce cases are hopeless," he said. "Of the 60,000 I've listened to, I have brought reconciliations in only about 2,000, although I've tried in many more."

Junior Chamber of Commerce Organizes, Names Yost President

SENIOR GROUP PUTS APPROVAL ON NEW UNIT

Hardware Dealer To Head Young Business Men's Organization

OTHER OFFICERS PICKED

Meetings To Be Staged Twice Monthly Under Constitution

Circleville was given a Junior Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night when 25 young business men of the city organized by electing officers and directors.

Organization of the Junior Chamber was completed after Senior directors voted unanimously at the dinner meeting in Betz' restaurant to sanction the junior organization. The vote among the Senior directors was taken after each director had expressed his belief that a Junior Chamber should be set up. Senior directors voting their approval were A. V. Osborn, president of the Senior Chamber; R. L. Brehmer, Leslie May, C. Dee Early, F. K. Blair, W. Joe Burns, Mack Parrett, George Griffith and T. O. Gilliland.

James Yost, of the Harpster and Yost hardware was elected president of the Junior Chamber. Yost was one of the early promoters of the plan for a Junior organization and was formerly a member of the Columbus unit. He also is a member of the Circleville Senior Chamber of Commerce.

Sheldon Mader of Mader's candy shop was made first vice-president and Richard Williamson of the Clifton Theatre was chosen second vice-president. Robert Hempler of Stone's Grill will serve as secretary and Fred Grant, deputy clerk of courts, will be treasurer.

Directors Chosen

Twelve directors, six of whom shall serve for two years and six for one year, were elected by ballot preceding the election of officers. Directors who will serve for two years are James Yost, Richard Williamson, Dr. R. E. Hedges, Robert Hempler, Harold Clifton and Forrest Storts.

Directors serving for one year are Joe Brink, Sheldon Mader, Fred Grant, Glen Skinner, Roger Vega and John Robinson.

Three officers from the Chillicothe Junior Chamber, Robert Dresbach, president; Orville Garrett, vice-president, and John Stitt, secretary, were at Tuesday night's meeting and advised the local group on organization procedure.

Constitution Written

Sheldon Mader read the constitution and by-laws which were approved following discussion on each section. The rules provide that any business man in Circleville between 21 and 35 years old is eligible to join the organization.

The group voted to meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, the meeting to be held at 6:15 p. m. Next regular meeting for the organization was tentatively set for April 14. The directors will meet March 31 at 12 noon in Betz' restaurant to discuss the organization's future program.

Purpose of the Junior Chamber is to function either by itself or in cooperation with other welfare groups in promoting various programs for the benefit of Circleville.

Final business was completed nearly three hours after the Senior Chamber voted its approval on organizing the Junior group.

POEMS RECEIVE HONORS IN 'VISTAS' PUBLICATION

Poem of a Circleville woman, Mrs. W. W. Robinson, South Pickaway street, received top honors in the spring number of "Vistas," poetry publication of the Rev. L. C. Sherburne. Title of the poem is "This Land of Ours."

Among the Junior poems to receive awards were works of Betty Graham, sophomore at Scioto township school, and Martha Hulse, junior at Jackson township school.

He's the Prince

From a far distant land comes Prince Berendy (Dennis Allen) brought by reports of the beauty and wisdom of the lovely Princess Marya to seek her hand in marriage. Ignorant of the spell cast on the Princess he arrives on her 16th birthday, hearing a miniature spinning wheel as a betrothal gift in "Sleeping Beauty," being shown Friday afternoon at the Clifton theatre under auspices of the Child Conservation league.

Button Day Planned By Girl Clubs

High School Units Urging Cooperation To Assist Red Cross Work

Next Friday has been set up as "button day" in Circleville, and an effort is being made to collect a supply of old buttons which will be used by the Red Cross in making clothes for refugees in war-torn countries and for the families of soldiers.

Mrs. W. E. Caskey of the Red Cross has issued a call for buttons—any kind, any color, any size, or any shape.

Junior and Senior Girl Reserves of Circleville high school are sponsoring the campaign this week, and all children of the school system are being contacted for their cooperation.

The plea sent out by the Girl Reserves urges that all residents of the city assist in the undertaking, which is considered an important one. Such a program has been operated successfully in many cities.

"If you haven't a child," the Girl Reserve units point out, "get in contact with a youngster in your neighborhood and send your buttons to school with him."

The funeral will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in the New Holland Church of Christ.

SHIP ACTING IN QUEER MANNER HELD IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, March 25 — A French ship which Mexican coast guardsmen reported had been "acting suspicious" has been seized off the Isla De Lobos, about 60 miles southeast of Tampico, a dispatch to the newspaper La Prensa said today.

The vessel, according to the Vera Cruz correspondent of La Prensa, was stopped by the Mexican coast guard boat G-2 under orders to investigate all suspicious craft.

The correspondent quoted Vera Cruz naval headquarters as authority for his information.

The coast guard vessel escorted the ship, flying the French tricolor to Isla De Lobos, in the Gulf of Mexico.

David Coello Ochoa, Vera Cruz naval commandante, was advised immediately of the seizure and left for Isla De Lobos to make an investigation.
